3 UNDER ARREST FOR ALLEGED SWINDLE

Ryan Reveals Operations of a Band Accused of Soliciting for Bogus Association

A new "racket," the operators of which are alleged to have victimized scores of business concerns throughout the state, while specializing on Greater Boston automobile and day companies, was revealed today by Motor Vehicle Registrar Morgan Ryan.

The racketeers, Ryan said, have been posing as officers of a fake motor vehicle inspectors' association, obtaining subscriptions from business men for advertising in a mythical publication and promising "protection."

Three men have been arrested and in their possession it is alleged, were found receipt blanks indicating that the group posed as officers of police associations and fraternal organizations.

Registrar Ryan, following a thorough investigation by his own inspectors and state police, issued a warning to all business concerns throughout the state to beware of this swindle.

TWO HELD FOR THEFT
Two men were arrested at the Noyes-Rick Co. charged with larceny, and will be given a hearing Friday in Brookline court. They gave their names as Andrew McArthur, 25, of Middlesex st., Boston, and Thomas J. Riley, 54, of Spring st., Worcester.

Frank McDonald, 38, of Lexington ave., New York city, was arrested by Brookline police after he had allegedly solicited and obtained a check from the Allen Bros. garage, Brookline. He will also be in Brookline court tomorrow.

TWO ATTEMPTS FAIL
All receipts, Ryan said, were signed by Richard Graham as secretary of the Motor Vehicle Inspectors Association. Graham is alleged to have first contacted prospects by telephone and then sent emissaries to collect subscriptions at the rate of $120 for a full-page advertisement.

Two unsuccessful attempts were made to obtain money from Warren Bros. Co., Cambridge, and was stopped by activity of Motor Vehicle Inspector W. J. Woods and State Police Sergs. Cretio and Johnson.

SAVE CAT FROM DEATH IN WALL

A couple of painters saved what was left of a cat's nine lives today in a newly built house on Montvale ave., Woburn.

Albert Burke and George Norrie, both of Malden, each had heard at times during the past seven days, strange sounds coming from under the floor through the walls.

The house was too new to be haunted, they figured, and blamed the sounds on their own imagination.

Today, however, as both were kneeling side by side taping on a coat of varnish on the lower floor, they recognized the plaintive meowing of a cat. They cut a hole in the cellar ceiling and a half-starved cat fell into their arms.

The cat is believed to have been hoarded up when carpenters laid the floors.

MEN JOUS PART IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Oct. 19 (US)—Adolphe Menjou, movie and theatrical film player, and his wife, known by screen fans as Kathryn Carver, have parted. It was learned that the couple is in a hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Milton Cohen revealed that Mrs. Menjou had retained him as her attorney.

It is true Mr. and Mrs. Menjou have separated, he said. "He is interested in his work and she in hers. The separation is an amicable one."

Efforts are being made by friends of the couple to bring about an adjustment of their difficulties. A property settlement is being arranged, however, and it is believed Mrs. Menjou will file a divorce action as soon as those details have been arranged.

The couple returned only a week ago from a trip to Europe, taken following a reconciliation after a slight misunderstanding. They were married in May, 1929, in Paris.

Wife Sues to Make Dentist Stop Giving Beer to Baby

Mrs. Mary L. Ryan of Walpole objects to beer as part of her three-year-old son's diet. Until because she said, her husband, Dr. George H. Ryan, Walpole and Norwood dentist, insists on giving the baby his daily beer, she seeks separate support and custody of the child.

Norfolk court today, Judge McCallister listened to a recital on Mrs. Ryan's part of the indignities the alleged she had to endure since her marriage.

She went to live with her husband's father and mother, she said, after her marriage. She charged that her husband seldom gave her money, and that on one occasion, when she went to his office to ask for a dollar, he called the Walpole police chief to have her put out for annoying him.

She also accused him of striking her many times. Last August, she testified, when she went to greet her son who had been on a trip with his father, Ryan struck her, cutting her lip.

In September, she said, Dr. Ryan again attacked her and she had him arrested for assault and battery, on which charge he was fined $25.

Mrs. Ryan said she decided to leave him on October 3, declaring the home of her parents-in-law unfit for her child to live in because of drinking and profanity on the part of her husband and his parents. On that day, she charges, her husband again struck her. The case is still being heard.

ROYALTY MEETS FOR WEDDING IN GERMANY

Brilliant Ceremonies to Unite Swedish Prince and Sibylla of Coburg

Coburg, Germany Oct. 19 (US)—The Nazi mayor of Coburg today performed the civil ceremony uniting in marriage Prince Gustaf Adolf, son of the Swedish Crown Prince, and Princess Sibylla of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

The civil wedding, to be followed by the more colorful religious ceremony tomorrow, was in Hora Hall in the ancient Coburg castle. The fathers of the bride and bridegroom were the witnesses.

The three days of festivities began yesterday with an almost unprecedented riot by the bridegroom and bride. They received newspapermen in the armory hall of the ancient Coburg fortress.

What with Coburg's famous variety of "hot dogs," Bavaria's best beer, shaking and kissing of hands and lively conversation, everybody had a good time.

At the reception were the Grand Duchess Cyril, who is called the "Charlie of Russia," but whom Moscow does not recognize. The white-headed and smiling King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and the ex-Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, who was addressed as "Your Majesty."

The bridegroom's parents, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf and his wife, and the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Norway mingled with the guests.

Four tables in the armory graced with the weight of wedding gifts. Among them were two ornate chandeliers, presented by President Von Hindenburg.

A hand-painted scroll with a double bottom filled with earth so that a child born to the couple, though living in Sweden, will always sleep on German soil was presented by neighboring peasants.

Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, was among the first to send letters of congratulation.

PRINCE GUSTAF ADOLF PRINCESS SIBYLLA

Germany today saw its first royal wedding since that day back in 1918, when the Kaiser fled to Holland and a republic was proclaimed. MYSTERY GIRL SAVED FROM JAIL

The wife of a Boston policeman saved Newton's "mystery girl" from jail today.

The girl, Rita Agnes Hart, 19, of Brookline, was about to be sentenced on a vagrancy charge when Mrs. Bernard F. Driscoll of Holbrook st., Brighton, intervened.

Mrs. Hart, who first explained and then denied that she was recently expelled from University of New York, was arrested last Sunday night. A taxi driver complained that she rode from Scollay sq. to Newton, but had no funds to pay the $4.60 fare.

Before Judge Bacon in Newton court today, Mrs. Driscoll offered to shelter the girl until she could obtain work. The court agreed and ordered the girl on probation for a month.

Mrs. Driscoll said she harbored the girl at her home one night after the girl had called and mentioned the name of a New York friend.

Washington, Oct. 19 (US)—Copies of tributes paid to his mother, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, founder of the Parent-Teacher Association, kindergarten classes and training schools for kindergarten teachers, at the first meeting of the organization in the new Phoebe Hearst school, have been mailed to William Randolph Hearst.

Six small students read essays and verses telling of the accomplishments of Mrs. Hearst.

New England's Greatest MERCHANDISE EVENT

Proclamation

WE, the Sears Roebuck and Co., as America's largest storekeepers, are again sponsoring a tribute to New England industries ... progress ... thrift ... and the buying judgment of its citizens, our patrons.

¶ In the last two years, Sears Roebuck and Co. has spent a total of $58,295,037 in the six New England states. The total population of the New England states, according to the 1930 census, is 8,166,341. This means that Sears has spent $7.14 for every man, woman and child in the New England states in the last two years.

¶ Of the more than 58 millions Sears has spent in New England in 1930 and 1931, $52,571,196 was spent with 622 manufacturing sources located in 186 towns for merchandise purchased by Sears Roebuck and Co. and distributed for sale throughout the nation. The balance went to pay for wages, salaries, newspaper advertising, rents and taxes. It is especially interesting that whereas Sears buys merchandise from every one of the New England states, there are two states—Rhode Island and Vermont—in which our company has no retail stores. Yet Sears spends $1,900,000 or more every year for merchandise bought from more than 100 manufacturing enterprises in about 21 different cities in those two states.

¶ Over $1,000,000 worth of merchandise has been purchased from New England manufacturers expressly for the New England Days which start Thursday, Oct. 20, at all of Sears New England retail stores. Starting tomorrow, Sears stores are celebrating New England Days again. If you need anything for yourself, your home, your car, be sure to visit a Sears store during New England Days. For your convenience all stores will be open evenings until 9 p. m.

ROOSEVELT TO END DRY LAW

By RICHARD J. DOHERTY
James Monroe Olmstead of Waban, for many years president of the Boston Republican committee, announced today that he will vote for Roosevelt for President because in his opinion the election of the New York governor will end prohibition just as the election of Lincoln ended slavery. In a letter to the Liberal Civic League, Mr. Olmstead, who had been asked to state his views on prohibition, said:

POLEY TO HEAD RALLY

"It is to take the whole question of liquor regulation out of the Constitution. The Republican platform keeps it there, the Democratic platform takes it out and leaves it to the states. It becomes, therefore, the best possible referendum which we have been looking for. The election of Roosevelt will end prohibition just as that of Lincoln ended slavery. Roosevelt has already won the election on prohibition."

Mr. Olmstead was speaking at a meeting in the Boston area in 1922.

Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic state committee has designated Alty. William J. Foley of Boston as honorary chairman of a committee of 50 Democratic leaders to handle the huge rally in the Boston Arena on Oct. 27, at which Governor Gov. Alfred E. Smith will be the principal speaker.

Maynard disclosed that he has received queries in regard to the Smith rally from every section of New England, even from the remote St. John section in Maine and that in his opinion it will be one of the greatest political gatherings in the history of this part of the country.

DESERT G. O. F. FOLLY

Chairman Leo H. Leary of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League reports that many long Republicans are indicating their intention this year to support Gov. Roosevelt for the presidency.

Among the persons of both parties recently mentioned in the league are Dr. Joseph D. Rago, Mayor Richard M. Russell, of Cambridge, Alty. John L. Sheahan, Dr. Arthur J. Gallagher, of Brookline, Alty. J. Porter Crosby, of Charlestown, and Dr. F. J. Plunk of the Goodyear Rubber Company and Daniel R. Warren, of Fenwick.

Eighteen of the 25 members of the Harvard faculty selected as representatives of the sentiment at that university, reveal their intention to vote for Roosevelt.

Chairman Leary says that these thoughtful professors believe that Roosevelt is the foremost exponent in this campaign, of the progressive thought of the country.

Harvard conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws upon Governor Roosevelt, its highest honor, in honor. Upon this occasion, President Lowell, in conferring the award, made this declaration:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of New York, a statesman in whom there is no guile."

Independent branches of the Roosevelt-Ely Franco-American Club of Massachusetts have now been organized in 21 cities and towns of the state.

Rep. J. Henry Guegan, of Leominster, president of the club, said the people want a change and are determined to have it.

FITZGERALD DEBATE

In a joint debate with Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the House of Representatives at the John Ward School, Newton Center, former Mayor John P. Fitzgerald, in refuting the "Republican leadership" argument of President Hoover in his speech in Cleveland Saturday night pointed out, among other pertinent facts that:

Thomas Jefferson, Democrat, wrote the Declaration of Independence. President James Madison, Democrat, was the father of the Constitution. Jefferson negotiated the Louisiana Purchase. President James Monroe, Democrat, gave us the Monroe Doctrine. Grover Cleveland, Democrat, gave us sound money, and Wilson gave us the Federal Reserve Bank, expended $60,000,000 without scandal for war purposes, clothed, fed and carried across the Atlantic hundreds of thousands of men and women without the loss of a single life.

Also the House and Senate under President Wilson, he said, gave us the income tax law, popular election of United States senators, farm loan banks, workmen's compensation laws, the 8-hour day on public works and a labor man in the cabinet.

CROWDS GREAT ELY

Despite the driving rain, good-sized crowds greeted Gov. Ely at rallies held in Marlboro, and Framingham. In the former city, the governor spoke twice. To a group of Italian-Americans he outlined the principles of the Democratic party. The governor praised the work being done by his appointees. State Fire Marshal James Hurley, former mayor of that city. He discussed the banking situation and quoted a letter from Carl A. Raymond, budget commissioner and Republican to prove his claim of a reduction of $4,700,000 this year in departmental expenses, the first reduction in many years.

At the Framingham rally, the governor discussed the taking of the Worcester and Boston Street Railway location for the new Worcester trolley.

Union Official Dead

John Reynolds, 74, first president of the Boston Longshoremen's Union, is dead at his home, 21 Moore st., East Boston, after an illness of several months.

THE RISE AND FALL OF INSULL

One of Samuel Insull's greatest business successes—the rehabilitation of the Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co.—is recalled in this, the sixth chapter of the deposed utility magnate's remarkable life story.

Overrides Opposition

In the four decades of the Chicago career of Samuel Insull, the central figure of a "bound to win" epic, more fanciful than any of the famous success stories of the last generation.

As Insull helped build Chicago in the 40 years of his career, from an overgrown village of the 1850s into the modern metropolis, so Chicago built Insull. The more of the enormous power concentrated in this single individual, each deeply into virtually every phase of the city's life.

Overrides Opposition

Combination, concentration, the development of a strong through the elimination of the weak, were his policies from the start. Finally, he rode rough-shod over all opposition to his plans. With a combination of a few monopolistic companies in the place of many weak, competing ones, he girded himself to clear every obstacle from his path.

Insull developed the touch of Midas. But the accumulation of his great personal fortune of $100,000,000 was secondary to his thirst for power and the desire for achievement. "Getting things done" was his motto. He was the force that drove him on. Power, prestige, fame for him and for his became the main desire of his life.

As a sign of infallibility developed about him. He became to other capitalists of industry as well as the public at large, a symbol of success. It was the picture of "Insull the Infalible" that drew to his side the great army of small investors that aided him to build up his vast utility empire.

His investors, too, were ready either to provide financial support for his numerous projects or Chicago proved a fertile field for the seeds sown by the young Titan, Charles T. Yerkes, with a practical grip upon the city's traction lines, was at the height of his power when the young Insull appeared on the scene.

From a rugged steel Insull had the opportunity of watching the rise and fall of another of Chicago's powerful giants of the early days.

Insull developed his operating skill and resourcefulness while in Chicago of the five weak, competing electric companies. From 1892 to 1907 he labored at the difficult task of merging the small separate units into the Commonwealth Edison Company, forerunner of the successful company of today.

Seeks New Fields

This organization job completed, he cast his eyes upon new fields to conquer. The same program of combination, concentration and expansion was applied to other electric properties in the Chicago metropolitan area. Small plants were bought into the trust and superior equipment was scrapped, poor lines were combined and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, another of the great Insull companies was born.

Without the restraint of today's regulatory commissions, the Insull empire continued to grow. The organization of the Middle West Utilities his first holding company, was the first step in the career of the giant, rapidly approaching his full growth. "This combination increased," his biographer wrote from Maine to Texas, giving utility service direct, "to or at wholesale to hundreds of communities in 15 states. While these local utilities were predominantly electrical, gas, ice, water and many services were also given in numerous places."

Insull became the chairman of these new companies, just as he became the chairman of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago & North Shore Railroad.

Widens Activities

Chicago remained the principal center of Insull's operations, but the tentacles of his power stretched across the nation and into the homes of thousands upon thousands.

Up until this time Insull had been interested principally in electrical enterprises. He was an "electric light and power man" from his earliest training in the utility field received at the hands of Edison himself.

But by the formation of the Middle West Utilities, he had made his entry into other utility enterprises, and in 1913, when one of his large

Insull Has His 2 Pet Dogs Killed

Reading Eng., Oct. 19 (AP)—Two pet dogs which formerly were inseparable companions of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utility magnate, were killed by a car in the city of Chicago.

Insull was a peddler of the dog and the other a pedigree dog. It was stated both were in healthy condition, but a veterinary carried out. Insull instructed to kill them. They were buried in the garage.

publishers companies absorbed an instant gas company operating Illinois, north of Chicago, he began seeking new fields of achievement. He allied services.

Three years he became chairman of the board of the Peoples Gas and Coke Company, an old, established utility that had been struggling along for years because of the difficulties of its service in the city of Chicago.

Insull took the presidency of the company, arranged for funds to meet the bond interest; contracted for a new gas manufacturing plant to be built by a separate company; infused a new spirit into the discouraged and discouraged personnel and straightened out the company's relations with the public investors and its 700,000 customers.

Insull broke no indifference with his plan. He met and overcame the obstacles in his path by wielding the great scepter of power that had been placed in his hands. In the manner that he deemed the most appropriate to the problem involved.

KIDNAPING FEAR GRIPS INSULL IN GREECE

Athens, Oct. 19 (AP)—Friends of Samuel Insull encountered difficulty today in convincing him there was no danger of his being kidnapped by private detectives or other persons who should venture into a deserted or mountainous part of the country where The Greek people would be unable to protect him.

The former utilities magnate said he had small faith in an official report from Chicago of his statement that American detectives were denied seeking to kidnap him.

"They could not do otherwise than deny the report," he said. Persons who have attempted to ally his apprehension said he has the indomitable baby kidnapping case in mind and cannot shake off his fears.

FACE TO FACE STUDY

I have studied these problems. I have made a trip through every section of the United States in order to become familiar with the people and the varying problems of each community and section.

I have proposed a series of plans dealing with these problems. I have suggested a program for the rehabilitation of agriculture—a program for placing the great transportation system of railroads on their feet and operating them as an asset to the general public.

It is the greatest number of these carriers which hold the key to the future of the community.

I have outlined my purpose to curb the financial excesses and speculations which in the past years have thrown us into a state of the hard-earned savings of simple citizens have been lost.

Why most of us are "Dumb"

A Famous Psychologist Explains the Incredibly Stupid Things Done Even by Persons of Very High Intelligence

THERE seem to be few human beings, living or dead, who cannot be fairly described as "dumb." This is because so many people—even those of recognized intelligence—seem capable of surprising stupidity on occasion. Only a glance at the pages of history supplies many examples of genius and its absurdities.

The question naturally arises as to why so many people appear to be "dumb." Is it because of the vastness of human knowledge? Is it because of the shortness of life? Can we never learn enough to avoid situations wherein, because of ignorance, we must act stupidly?

But curiously enough, the psychologists' explanation of human stupidity takes little if any stock in these seemingly reasonable questions. What is more, it introduces us to one of the most interesting of its mysteries. See for yourself by reading the article explaining stupidity, by the Director of Colgate University's Psychological Laboratory, Prof. D. A. Laird, appearing in next Sunday's American Weekly.

CITY ORDERED TO BUY LAND AT $134,000

Despite protests by the Boston Finance Commission against payment of $134,000 for North End land taken for the entrance to the new East Boston traffic tunnel, Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman today ordered the amount paid to former owners of the property.

The Finance Commission contended the land could be purchased for $50,000 and that the former owners were still willing to accept the smaller figure.

Silverman, after ordering City Auditor Rupert B. Carven to make the payment, announced his decision that the smaller figure had already been recorded for ten days.

He said that in further delay caused the owners could sue the city, receive a favorable verdict, and cause the city to forfeit several thousand dollars additional in interest charges.

Missing Heiress, Eye Black, Found in Brighton Flat

Maybe it was because of that football coach's crack about the Irish having slipped, but Patrimoine Andrew J. Maguire of the Brighton station pulled himself together to day, matched this with that in his mind's eye—and correlated the missing Anne Grover, 17-year-old Lynn runaway heiress.

He captured her, incidentally with a black right eye and scratches on one cheek, but as a police officer, who has had Lynn police hunting her with a warrant as a stubborn child for more than two weeks, refused to say how she got into his clasp.

Ann was found in the Washington, apartment of a Boston newspaperwoman, as another chapter of Anne's "drama" was being completed with Ann reuniting in an ecstatic embrace.

Capl. John McGrath and some of his Brighton officers were talking over the Grover case with Inspector Muckins and Sullivan of Lynn in Brighton station today when one of the Lynn inspectors remarked that he could not understand how a certain newspaper was getting so many photographs of the girl—new ones.

Well, I'll be a so-and-so, cried Officer Maguire, as a sudden thought smote him. "A girl who works for that paper lives right on this division, I'm going down there to see if I can find out anything."

Maguire went down with the Lynn officers, who remained in the car while Maguire, in plain clothes went up to Suite 11. The newspaper girl opened the door.

"How do you do," said Maguire. "Is this Miss Grover?" "Yes, won't you come in," said the newspaper girl, who is always polite. Maguire entered and greeted the Grover girl, who said she didn't want to remember him.

Oh, I'm just a policeman, come to take you home," said Maguire simply. Irish slapping—my eye!

PUT IN A CELL. Because her arrest came too late today for arraignment on the runaway child warrant, Ann was clapped in a cell in Lynn police headquarters, although only $500 bail was set.

No one came forward to bail her out, not even her foster mother, Mrs. James H. Grover, North Shore schoolwoman, who obtained the warrant against the girl but who said she was doing it for "Ann's own good."

I detest this," said Ann to the captain.

HOOVER'S GAINS FAIL TO CHEER REPUBLICANS

BY COLE E. MORGAN

Universal Service Correspondent
Washington, Oct. 10.—The gains that President Hoover has been making in the United States, Eastern and Central states, and even in the Southern states of the Mississippi, still fail to show where he can acquire the 200 electoral votes necessary if he is to continue another term in the White House.

Return in the nation-wide postcard presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other major morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, gives the Republican nominees a total of 140 electoral votes in states where he had obtained a majority of the Hoover-Roosevelt poll ballot.

GIVEN TOP STRENGTH
This 145 includes the 47 of New York and the 28 of Ohio and the nine of Kansas and the six of Colorado that are not given to him in other straw votes. The Hearst newspaper poll, therefore, giving Hoover everything that the straw vote tests as a whole say he is entitled to. The 145 votes now to his credit still leaves him 111 to go for a bare majority of the 531 total.

The 145 includes all New England, New York and New Jersey, Ohio, Kansas and Colorado and that of Delaware's 3, Pennsylvania's 28, Michigan's 18, Indiana's 4, Illinois' 28, Iowa's 11, Montana's 4, Idaho's 4, Wyoming's 4. All states where he has shown some recent pickup, and it would give him 123 additional for a total of 268. That would put him over, but wait a minute.

California has developed as yet to warrant even remotely the conceding of Illinois to Hoover. With-out Illinois, but with all of the other states mentioned, he would be 27 short. His home state of California could not even save him in that situation for it has only 22. Do not let the optimistic talk of the Republican leaders about the poll returns and other developments have lulled thus far to indicate wherein the California revolt against Hoover has lost its momentum.

It will take a lot of paper and pencil and head-scratching to work out the answer of where the electoral votes are coming from.

Harvard Democrats Win
Debaters of the Harvard Democratic Club easily defeated their Republican Club rivals on the question: Resolved, That Hoover should be Re-elected, at Eliot House last night.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Oct. 10.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other States morning, evening and Sunday papers in which he is leading.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading. In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returning report from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

KILL 'EM ALL

they are more deadly than

RATTLESNAKES

Cockroaches carry germs of disease and filth from culture and sewers to the pantry shelves and food containers.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET RID OF THEM

Liquids will kill only about 10%. Poisons powders will do about the same. There is only one sure and safe way to entirely rid the house of these pests. Roaches are night feeding bugs. They don't appear until late and then they are everywhere. They eat their way through food, feed them something they like better than ordinary food, something that is non-poisonous and does not drive them back into the wall.

There's Milders

Calling a cigarette mild doesn't make it mild. Chesterfield starts at the beginning, by using the right kind of mild, ripe tobaccos... Then Chesterfield ages and cures its tobacco just right. And scientific research has perfected a unique method of "Cross-Blending" that makes Chesterfield consistently milder and better-tasting.

Priestley in Tart Retort to Critics
Who Doom Him for Success

By Robert E. Rogers

ON MONDAY I BROADCAST in the afternoon for University Extension and then I broadcast in the evening for the Washington Bi-Centenary and in between I took a kind of busyman's holiday. I sat me down to listen to Mr. J. B. Priestley, author of "The Good Companions," broadcast from London.

This was the broadcast which, you may remember, went haywire a week ago, because Mr. Priestley had sent his men ahead to the studio and then showed up without one, expecting to have his original handed to him as he went on the air. But it wasn't and he didn't and I, for one, was disappointed. I was not disappointed Monday afternoon. I am inclined to think that Mr. Priestley is one of the most delightful radio speakers I have heard.

His voice has something of the timbre of Heywood Brown—who was in our midst on Sunday evening last—that is, there is something of the same husky richness in his tones. But whereas Mr. Brown gives the impression of being about the laziest, most uncertain, and meandering person on the air, and whereas Mr. Brown's lazy voice sounds even lazier for drawing his vowels and forgetting his consonants, Mr. Priestley's enunciation was crisp and accurate in the best English tradition. There is nothing of the exaggerated Oxford mouthings in his speech. He speaks quietly and well, but with emphasis and precision.

Doomed Because of Success?

But it was his matter that delighted me! His address was entitled, "To an Unknown Listener" or something of the sort, and it turned out to be a very frank conversation with an imaginary "High-brow" who had been, apparently, stepping on Mr. Priestley's literary toes. One can imagine what has happened, Mr. Priestley has written three very successful novels... in the best class since. Since that time the precious and high-brow clique of critics and other writers have been saying that his career is done for. He has become "popular," therefore he is on the literary to-bogean.

I gathered this from Mr. Priestley himself, as he sat himself down to argue with this imaginary friend of his. He ended up by offering him a drink, but not before he had wiped up the floor with him. I have seldom heard a better job of satiric analysis crammed into the 10 or 12 minutes... on the air or elsewhere. I liked it, particularly, I suppose, because Mr. Priestley said only what I have put myself on record as saying several years ago. But he said it infinitely better.

The High-brow is the member of a small clique that enjoys what is unpopular. He is a member of a small but intensely irritating minority. He is the Pharisee who thanks his God that he is not as other men are. He is not an intellectual giant; he is usually an intellectual invalid. He has always existed. He scorned Shakespeare's plays because they were not modeled on Seneca. He preferred Beaumont and Fletcher. He couldn't stand Pletcher. He couldn't stand Fielding because he was vulgar and popular. He couldn't stand Dickens.

Great Art is Never High-Brow

The great artists are never High-brow. We never think of Balzac as one, or Thackeray, or Thomas Hardy, or H. G. Wells. They are human and universal... and popular. Against them Mr. Priestley seems to measure Mr. Aldous Huxley and men of his kind in England. Over here, I suppose, he would have to pick the new communist literary men, the Franks and Calvertons, the crowd that published "The American Caravan" over here and "transition" in Paris.

The High-brow is exactly the same kind of person as the High-brow; that is, both of them delight in not liking what all intelligent and cultivated men generally like. The High-brow refuses to read to it; the High-brow refuses to consent to it. He will read only E. E. Cummings' poetry, like only the latest thing in surrealist art, listen to only Scriabin and Honegger and the boiler-room composers whom Mr. Koussevitzky loves to play for his own satisfaction. He is the sort of person who, like the Seides brought up with a round turn some years ago in his book "The Seven Lively Arts."

Most of the above is Mr. Priestley's. Some of it is mine. And because I can't remember his exquisite and pointed phrasing, let quote from myself. (The Fine Art of Reading; Stanford Co.) I hope that it does not represent Mr. Priestley.

"Your genuine High-brow is the Simon pure provincial of the spirit. When a new book comes out he reads an old one. He prefers the 18th century to the 19th and the 19th to the 20th. He is full of arbitrary rejections. He will not go to the moving pictures. American fiction is becoming increasingly vulgar. Or he will read Thornton Wilder but not Sinclair Lewis. He will read Galsworthy but not Wells. He has brought himself to taste gingerly at Walt Whitman but he retches at Sandburg. He acknowledges Monet but still balks at Cezanne. He thinks Brahms perfect, but reads not Puccini, and walks out on George Gershwin. Babbitt (Iving not George F.) and Paul Elmer More are his gods."

If It's Worthwhile They Taboo It

"The test, in short, of a High-brow is this; if a work of art, literature, music, or philosophy is rich, full-bodied, fresh, original, touched with vulgarity, popular, if it has gusto and life, he will have none of it. If it is sanctioned by tradition, or if it is imitative, if it sets neither mind, spirit or flesh a-tangling, if it accords, in short, with those negative concepts of culture and behavior which were the 19th century marks of gentility, then he will welcome it and be content."

Of course I was speaking more of what might be called the academic High-brow, while Mr. Priestley was speaking of the modern literary High-brow who prefers the dais and the gargoyle to the good, the beautiful and the true. I was delighted, all the more then, to see that he had borrowed from H. G. Wells the same idea which had greatly comforted me. Said Wells: "The terms High-brow and Low-brow need to be supplemented by Broad-brow. The High-brow has nothing to learn and the Low-brow will learn nothing; in effect they are the same thing. The High-brow is only the Low-brow plus pretentiousness. It is the same sort of brain stood on end. The Broad-brow is just as anxious not to be 'arty' as the Low-brow and as terrified of the cheap and obvious as the High-brow. His role is neither to Jordan the current thing nor to accept it, but to learn from it."

For, after all, as Mr. Priestley also said, the great artist must write as if he had an audience of a million readers. And who said that? Edgar Wallace? Not so! Johann Wolfgang von Goethe... who did not do so badly, himself.

Capturing 'Spitfire,' the Black Leopard, Ferocious and Full of Cussedness

By FRANK BUCK

With Edward Anthony

In yesterday's installment the author told how "The Patsy" most ill-starred of elephants, was brought from Ceylon to California. Today he describes how the treacherous black leopards are made captive.

Mystery and cussedness combine to make the black leopard the most fascinating of all animals. Of all the creatures known to man he is the one about whom there is the least available information. Of only one thing are those who have had anything to do with him sure: that he is the meanest and most vicious of the great cats.

Not much of the meager store of information that has been recorded on this little-known animal is accurate. An important zoological work—reliable in most respects—devoted a few vague lines to the black leopard, winding up by declaring him to be most plentiful in southern India. This is incorrect, for there are more black leopards in the Malay Peninsula than anywhere else in the world.

Only those who have had first-hand experience with the animal have any real information. Having brought back 20 black leopards to the United States, I feel qualified to discuss the subject, though I frankly admit that I am as mystified as anyone else by the principal riddle connected with them. That has to do with their rapid increase in the Malay Peninsula, where today the spotted leopards are constantly producing black leopards, where the reverse is an unusual occurrence. Nowhere else is there a condition comparable to this.

MYSTERY IN BLACK LEOPARDS

In India, Africa, southern China and other places where the leopard is plentiful, the tawny-colored cats have on rare occasions been known to produce a black cub, and it is only in the Malay Peninsula that this is a regular occurrence.

Chauffeur Leaps From Wheel to Nab Thief

A taxicab driver played the part of a policeman last night when he jumped from his cab and captured a thief who had just snatched a woman's handbag and held him prisoner until the arrival of police.

Miss Josephine Beckwith, of Warren ave., Framingham, the intended victim of the theft, had just crossed Audubon rd., when the thief grabbed her purse containing $14 in cash. The taxicab driver, Samuel Patterson, of 3 Alleghany st., Roxbury, leaped from his cab and grabbed the thief, who gave his name as Thomas E. Calnan of Howard st., Boston.

LEAGUERS HEAR OF HEALTH AIDS

Methods of controlling and regulating the community's health were outlined today by Dr. Robert Warner of the United States Public Health Service, one of the third day of the five-day welfare conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America.

Responsibility of official health departments in this work and their relation to non-official health programs were explained by Dr. Warner and also by Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of the Yale Medical School.

Following luncheon, several round-tables on special types of health projects were held, and for these delegates whose leagues are mainly interested in children's work there were field trips to the New England Home for Little Wanderers, the Judge Baker Foundation, the Nursery Training School and the Elizabeth Peabody House.

BOSTON VOTING LIST TO TOP 1928 MARK

Total May Pass 300,000; Books Close at 10 P. M., So Be on Time

With a total of 297,147 voters registered up to closing time last night, the registering went into its last day today. Despite the rain, Democrats hoped to set a high record for registration, although it was almost a foregone conclusion that the 1928 total of more than 299,000 would be exceeded by 10,000.

Mayor Curley has had about 100,000 voters who stated.

The fact that the rain was responsible for this measure showing was evidenced through a registration of 4700 persons on Monday, as a 241 would not be reached. As registering went on today, it was almost a foregone conclusion that the 1928 total of more than 299,000 would be exceeded by 10,000.

All persons voting in line at 10 o'clock tonight will be registered; but those who delay their arrival until after that hour will be "out of luck."

NO. END GANG PREYS ON POOLS

Another illustration of adoption here of New York and Chicago racketeering methods was revealed today when police learned that a North End man, one of the powerful gang leaders in the city, is preying on the operators of billiard pools and other lotteries.

This gang leader, through pressure brought to bear on the lotteries and billiard pools, is extracting a 15 per cent cut on the business of all local pools, a considerable amount every month.

This disclosure followed discovery that organized kidnappers were preying on bootleggers and another gang was systematically victimizing speakeasy proprietors and doing peddle by holding them up at gunpoint. Moreover, an outfit which started exacting toll from bakeshops a couple of months ago is now working on barbershops.

Police also learned of several instances where henchmen of the North End leader went into a small store and demanded ransom at the wholesale price. This was refused, whereupon they took the store without payment, threatening bodily harm to those who refused. If any report was made to the police, the business had led to no clash. It has been done quietly but effectively. Put a revolt is sure to come soon, according to the police, and if it is not put down on this high note, several killings may result.

Mayor Ends Row With Sally Leader

The dove of peace had settled over the Mayor Curley-Evangeline Booth controversy today with the mayor accepting the Salvation Army leader's explanation of her remark favoring the candidacy of President Hoover.

Miss Booth yesterday sent an answer to Mayor Curley's criticism of her for stating that the President should be re-elected. She said the eighteenth Amendment retained, in which she declared the sentiment expressed were personal and not those of the Salvation Army.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

U. S. SHIPPING IS GOING AHEAD; PLANS ADDITION

By B. C. FORBES

I was privileged to attend a birthday party given by the ten participating American Citizens who, one year ago, entered into an arrangement to put on the map America's shipping.

The inspiring news was revealed that the United States Lines contemplates ordering another ship, of unsurpassed size, for the Atlantic trade.

Among the United States Lines officers who attended the luncheon, given by B. Stanley Dwyer, president, were P. A. Franklin, chairman; Joseph H. Bennett, John M. Frank and Paul Harris, vice-presidents. One attendee was Herbert Blumenthal, dynamic Mr. Franklin's partner who had moved to New York, with considerable assets, from Atlantic City, where he had been a successful gambler.

What have you accomplished for American shipping during your first year? I asked.

"It was in accordance with a request of the shipping board," came the reply, that exactly one year ago an alliance was made between the Pacific coast groups, headed by Stanley Dwyer, and the Eastern groups, headed by Mr. Franklin, resulting in the United States Lines. The year has really been one of accomplishment.

"The U. S. Lines has launched the two largest ships in the world in America. One, the Metropolitan, is already successfully operating. Her sister, the Washington, will go into service next May. The ship cost approximately $10,000,000—an important contribution to shipping, which is about 85 per cent of the $20,000,000 cost of the ship.

"This too, is encouraging. Although our country has not been able to make only five round trips a year with the Metropolitan, she has enjoyed such increased patronage that we have decided to keep her in service all winter. This means continued employment of the crew and a thousand American seamen, to say nothing of the necessary to handle her and her cargo.

"The Pacific-Atlantic alliance of trading shipping interests has achieved favorable results for the American flag in the North Atlantic.

That the tactics have been used this week in an attempt to drive the long stock is proving to be just as futile as those called on previously.

Unless the sellers succeed in knocking the 30 index down to under 60, it would seem that they are very much on the defensive.

SPECTATOR

Says:

The market showed itself inherently strong when the tobacco stocks were sold down.

Normally, this would induce a considerable liquidation throughout the list.

The best evidence that some of this occurred was the way stocks came back.

This further confirms the belief that there is little if any overhanging stock for sale unless some unexpected piece of bad news breaks.

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—A varied assortment of data indicating that the trend of business is still upward, appears in the mid-October reports of editors of 130 publications, made to Associated Business Press, Inc.

Views Politics as Factor in Market

By MERVILLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Oct. 19.—In popular discussions there is a tendency to ascribe more sophistication to the stock market than it really has.

There was a recognition from the inside of Wall Street's occasional naivete in Otto H. Kahn's remark at one time that finance is an old lady with shaken nerves.

In the last five weeks the stock ticker has gone off into periodic jitters, resulting in part on account of

Sees Unification
Saving 5-Ct. Fare
New York, Oct. 19.—Only possible safeguard for a 5-cent fare is uni-

from apparently taking too seriously the utterances of politicians. Perhaps the defense is that the market has been reflecting uncertainty as to the outcome of the election, yet the polls of the Herald newspapers and of the Literary Digest seemingly leave little room for doubt as to the outcome.

Since historically, prosperity and depression have not depended primarily on which of the two major parties happens to be in office, the little short-sighted party that is so determined to stir up the masses to elect the electorates to vote for one side or the other, the "Ins" in their desperation have been playing on the fear motif, sometimes with downright unfortunate results marketwide.

Recenting this tendency, a patriotic group, including members of both parties, will petition the national committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties to desist from campaign tactics that seem harmful to the credit of the United States.

Not since the first week of this year has the pound sold below the 3.40 level. The January 8 figure marked its extreme low point before the 1932 rally, which began in the second week of 1932.

The break was attributed to the withdrawal of supporting purchases by the Bank of England. In April, a stabilization fund of 150,000,000 pounds was set up to maintain the pound on a firm base around $3.77.

In removing its "peg" for the pound, the Bank of England's action was interpreted here as indicating a desire to find at what level the pound could support itself, without banking assistance, in the markets of the world. Such a policy, it was believed, would afford

CONFUSION MISSING NOW

John De Vries, a builder, who lives at 54 Myrtle in Medford, is the latest in a group of clients to lodge a complaint against John F. Leary, young Medford, who disappeared September 28. De Vries charges Leary failed to turn over to him $200 which he alleged the former secretary of the Medford Schoolhouse Building Commission collected for him. Middlesex grand jury, which reported on the Leary and other cases yesterday, heard the testimony of De Vries and three other witnesses.

Leary is alleged to have failed to turn in $2000 collected on mortgages for the Metropolitan Building Corporation of Medford, for which he acted as counsel until forced to resign last June. Following Leary's resignation the directors of the company made formal complaint to the Middlesex Bar Association, which referred the charges to the grievance committee.

State Detectives O'Neill and Sherlock today checked up other complaints.

MISS LOMBARD WINS REVOLT

Hollywood, Oct. 19 (AP)—Hollywood's latest temperamental insurance has ended like all the others—a victory for the rebel.

An order removing Carole Lombard from the payroll was rescinded yesterday after Paramount Studio officials announced they had agreed with her refusal to play a role in a Warner Brothers picture starring James Cagney.

Lombard had been in the picture since the contract was made, but she had been in the picture since the contract was made, but she had been in the picture since the contract was made.

William Powell, film actor husband of Miss Lombard, will return to Paramount and start a new film.

My wife was sold down the river and she cannot be blamed for refusing to play the part, which would have made her nothing but a 'stinger' for Johnny Howard.

Mr. Coolidge's Defense of Blunders Made by Hoover Administration

It has been a Republican tradition to build up a party spokesman, and to wrap him in reverence and authority. Then, when he embarks on an utterance, it does not matter what he says so much as THAT HE HAS SPOKEN.

Ellis Root, before his retirement, served as this kind of mummy jumbo for the Republican party. Are the Republicans now trying to build up Calvin Coolidge as his successor?

Mr. Coolidge has come to the defense of his successor in the presidency, and well he may, for many of Mr. Hoover's problems were direct legacies from the days of the Coolidge administration.

However, Mr. Coolidge finds himself as embarrassed in explaining the failure of the present Republican administration as Mr. Hoover himself.

Mr. Hoover has finally decided that the depression is due to the war. But Mr. Coolidge thinks its prolongation has been due to something else and blames Franklin D. Roosevelt for not speaking out against the soldiers' bonus. Because of this, said Mr. Coolidge in his Madison Square Garden speech, "economic recovery was measurably impeded."

Neither Mr. Hoover nor Mr. Coolidge is disposed to admit that Mr. Hoover's administration encouraged the reckless speculation in Wall Street, and stimulated the over-capitalization whose collapse INAUGURATED THE DEPRESSION.

Mr. Coolidge did not mention that Hoover's administration generally approved, if it did not endorse, some of the issues of worthless foreign bonds sold to our American investors by Mr. Hoover's friends and supporters, the international bankers.

Trustful American investors lost hundreds of millions, in fact, thousands of millions of dollars, in the depreciation and repudiation of these worthless foreign bonds, and in the collapse of Wall Street securities, over-capitalized at ten times their value.

The money of our American investors was used to make bankers rich with commissions, and foreign swindlers rich with bribes. But, according to Calvin Coolidge, Mr. Hoover—who in the Coolidge phrase deserves to be compared with Lincoln—had no influence on the prolonged depression compared with the malignant influence exercised by Mr. Roosevelt in not talking sufficiently about the soldiers' bonus.

Not even Mr. Hoover's complete subservience to the Power Trust—the most disastrously over-capitalized swindle in the whole history of the United States, ruining hundreds of thousands of worthy citizens—has as much to do with impending "economic recovery," according to Mr. Coolidge, as Mr. Roosevelt's failure to discuss the soldiers' bonus has had.

Mr. Coolidge diverted his attention from the subservience of the Republican administration to every organization of wealth.

Its encouragement of Wall Street speculation.

Its express approval of the questionable activities of international bankers; its flimsy opposition to any practicable legislation for the creation of jobs.

Its preoccupation in the agreeable work of financing the financiers.

Its neglect of the interests of the farmers and the working classes.

Its partiality to foreign interests rather than American interests.

Its futile and unceasing effort to transfer the burdens of European nations to the back of the American taxpayer.

Its discreditable double dealing on prohibition.

The autocratic attitude of the Republican administration toward the people's Congress, arrogating to itself functions which properly belong to the representatives of the people.

The contempt for popular opinion and popular judgment; which a Republican President has expressed time and again in written articles and frequently evidenced in his official acts.

The execrable hostility of the Republican administration to the Veterans of the World War, culminating in the shameful attack upon the unarmed veterans of the bonus army with bayonets, gas bombs and armored tanks.

Ignoring all these counts in the grave and weighty popular indictment of the Hoover administration, Mr. Coolidge bandies imputes in our difficult present and future, to the fact that MR. ROOSEVELT IS NOT TALKING SUFFICIENTLY ABOUT THE SOLDIERS' BONUS.

Apparently Mr. Coolidge fails to realize that the question of the soldiers' bonus will come up before THE PRESENT CONGRESS when it assembles on December fifth of THIS YEAR, 1932. The question will be DECIDED BY THIS CONGRESS AND BY MR. ROOSEVELT long before Mr. Roosevelt is inaugurated.

Mr. Roosevelt will not take office until March fourth, 1933, and the Congress which is to be elected this November, unless called in special session, will not assemble until December, 1933.

Mr. Roosevelt has no real interest to express himself at appropriate times on the subject of the treatment of the veterans.

Why should he CONTINUE TO TALK about something for which he has NO IMMEDIATE RESPONSIBILITY, and which the present Congress and Mr. Hoover will decide?

No one knows what the conditions of the country are destined to be at the end of 1933. No one can predict what its income will be at that time, nor whether the country will be faced with a deficit or not, or what the state of any deficit may be.

It is not plain that the insistence of Mr. Coolidge that Mr. Roosevelt should break into utterance on this subject is an attempt to divert attention from Mr. Hoover's discomfiture on the question?

Former President Coolidge has on more than one occasion lauded the virtue of silence. He has referred to it as golden.

He would have been well advised to practice this virtue. Silence is surely golden when you do not know what you are talking about, and so far as Mr. Roosevelt is concerned—when you CAN NOT KNOW WHAT YOU ARE ASKED TO TALK ABOUT.
